Bob Butterworth, Principal Executive Project Management

With fifteen years of mission critical web executive experience, Bob's past campaign work includes direct management for Nike, Toyota, AT&T, Microsoft and Comcast, among others. His current responsibilities range from executive project management to business development and advertising/marketing strategy.

As a high tech pioneer and serial entrepreneur since his early 20s, Bob has been a key founder in three successful technology and/or service-based businesses – as well as dozens of other successful websites and businesses as consultant/advisor. He has the unique ability to quickly understand key business challenges and develop practical technology-driven solutions. Bob is that rare individual capable of understanding and enhancing and all aspects of a project specification and is as comfortable communicating with clients as he is the most technical of developers.

Team

Mike Sullivan, Creative Director

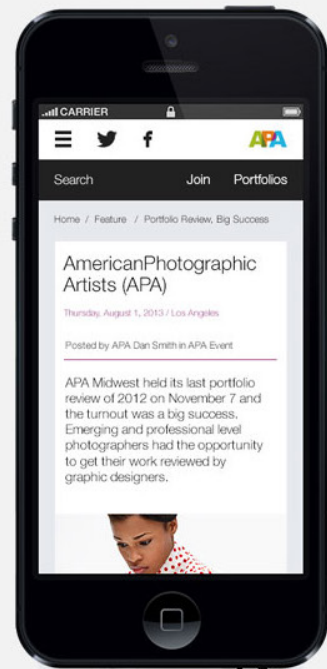

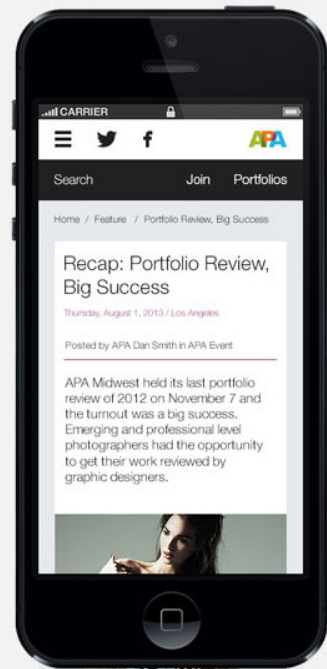

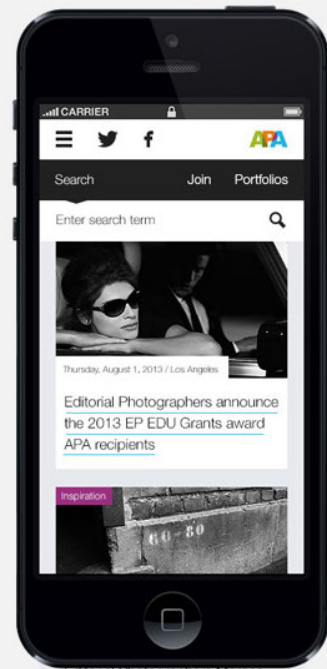

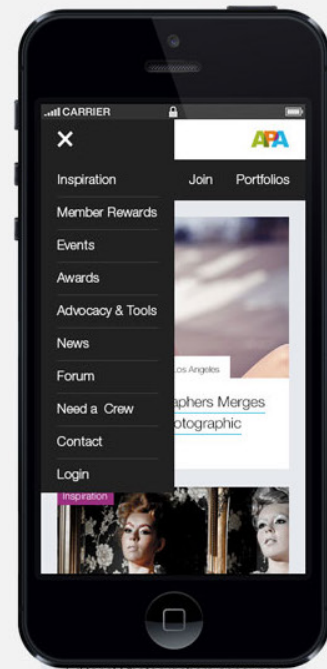

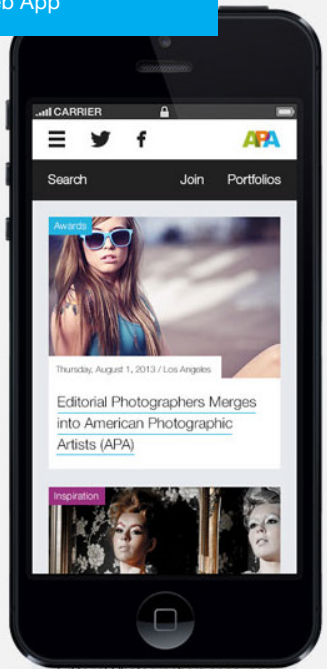

Creative Direction / Lead Designer / User Experience Strategist

A digital creative director with a strong sense of aesthetics and visual identity, with over 18 years experience in print, typography, online and interactive design. At his best when developing creative strategies and helping clients exploit the opportunities offered by digital media. Actively working with clients, both large and small — helping them deliver by combining experience in marketing, design and strategic thinking.

Having worked for a Japanese owned design agency in the UK, Mike then moved to Japan, gaining insight into the Asian markets and design sensibilities. Upon returning to UK, Mike founded an Anglo/Japanese agency where he enjoyed 5 successful years working for Sony, Brother, Panasonic, Hitachi and Toshiba.

Founded Mister in 2006 - an independent design studio based in the UK. The studio specialises in design and branding for cultural and commercial clients. Working in partnership with clients to create compelling, functional design, ensuring their brand has the impact it deserves. We often collaborate with a wide network of selected designers, illustrators, developers and photographers. This allows the flexibility to blend the expertise to suit the specific needs of a project. Together, we specialise in a wide variety of media and technologies. We don't believe there are different kinds of design, just different design applications.

Editorial Photographers Merges into American Photographic Artists (APA)

APA Midwest has partnered with AIGA Chicago to bring you this Connect event that explores the relationship between Designer and Photographer.

APA Midwest held its last portfolio review of 2012 on November 7 and the turnout was a big success. Emerging and professional level photographers had the opportunity to get their work reviewed by graphic designers.

Projects reach their greatest potential when all contributing members challenge each other to go further and beyond their current abilities. At this event, we'll take a closer look at the dynamic working relationship between designer and photographer.

We were so happy to host the APA's portfolio review in our space. Being a part of this amazing community and helping build a place where people can come to not only get their work done.

Berschauer Phillips changes name to Forma Construction

PUBLISHED: OCTOBER 28, 2013

Drew Phillips will serve as director of business development and construction services, while Jace Munson will serve as chief operating officer.

executive and principal. Drew Phillips said he is upbeat about the construction sector.

Project sizes have increased, and we're seeing renewed activity in both the private and public sector, which is a welcome indicator that the economy is getting back on its feet at many levels," he said in a statement. Forma Construction, originally Berschauer Phillips, was formed in 1985. Past projects include the new Hands On Children's Museum and the renovation of the John L. O'Brien building on the Capitol Campus.

Forma Construction is deeply invested in assuring the highest standards of craftsmanship on our projects.

Our significant collaborative experience and team of detail-oriented field professionals means that we have reliable systems in place to track and assess quality control and customer satisfaction over the life of a project. As one of the largest and most active contractors in the Metropolitan area, in addition to building the award-winning Seattle Fire Station No. 28, and beginning construction of Fire Station No. 20, we are currently serving as the City's Job Order performing small scale construction and repair jobs on short notice for a wide range of Seattle Departments across the City—including FAS.

Other local projects include work for the Port of Seattle, Woodland Park Zoo, and the University of Washington, in addition to neighborhood businesses, community colleges, and State agencies.

NUMANTHIA/FOOD

Numanthia is the treasure of the Toro appellation and a leader of emerging Spanish premium wines

The name of the estate evokes the city of Numancia, famed for antiquity and resistance to Roman occupation Numancia thus stands for tenacity & resistance.
